

5 HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

The News Review

By BRUCE CATTON

THE old-fashioned die-hard conservative is not happy these days, and the extreme radical never has been happy; but it is doubtful if either of these groups is getting half the misery that is falling in the lap of a certain kind of doctrinaire liberal.

Bootleggers Turn From Liquor to Enter New Rackets

Disposition of Goods by Shady Means Begin to Crop Out

RETAIL TRADES HIT Fake Brokers Re-Sell Goods Bought Ostensibly for Export

Editor's Note: This is the second of two stories on new forms of racketeering that have developed since the introduction of the NRA.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NRA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Rackets, always contemptible, become doubly so when hiding under the Blue Eagle's wing.

What could be cheaper than this one, unearthed and scooped by a Better Business Bureau official—

Solicitors were found going around among NRA signers, asking that they pay to have their names listed on "honor lists" of an official NRA magazine. There is, up to now at least, no official national NRA publication, and anyone soliciting money for "honor listings" in any such purported "official NRA magazine" is a faker.

In Cleveland, where several such chiselers were unearthed, they were scared out of business by warnings of the Better Business Bureau and therefore no arrests or prosecutions were necessary.

But Better Business Bureau officials are already calculating that with a big "buy now drive" in prospect, people will be more likely than ever to become victims of the "industrial bootlegging" schemes which are expected to get considerable impetus from the codifying of business.

Attracts Liquor Bootlegger

The new retail code, which is expected to prohibit sales below cost, or below certain standard levels, may be a further temptation for illegal sales by bootleg merchandisers.

Further, as prohibition repeal comes nearer, liquor bootleggers, seeing the end of their present racket, are turning to the bootlegging of merchandise.

The industrial bootlegger is the man who, by fair means or foul, gets hold of merchandise that can be sold well under standard prices.

Naturally, not all "out-price" merchandise comes through the industrial bootlegger, but much of it does, and there is reason to fear that with legitimate industries strictly limited by their codes, an increasing amount of such goods may get afloat.

The industrial bootlegger, of course, works hand in hand with the industrial racketeer.

A Typical Case

Here is a typical setup: You run a drug store. You have on hand a considerable quantity of Doakes' Hair Tonic, a standard, well-advertised article which sells well. One day a couple of tough-looking fellows come into your store. They represent Croakes' Hair Tonic, a product made in frank imitation of Doakes', but produced in a sweatshop factory of cheap material, and with no standing in the trade.

The conservative can at least reflect that he controlled the government for upwards of a decade. The radical can always cock his ear for the rumble of tumblers down the streets of the distant future. But there is a certain kind of liberal to whom the present era seems to be bringing nothing but confusion and disappointment.

To be sure, the actions that this liberal has always demanded of his government are being taken. The program that he has clamored for years—or something strikingly like it—is being put into effect. The conservatives are in full retreat, all along the line, and they haven't yet found a rallying point.

But the tragedy, to the doctrinaire liberal, is that all of this is being done in the wrong way by the wrong people. The change came before he could pronounce his blessing upon it. He had just got through proving that nothing of consequence could be expected from the present administration, when it proceeded to take the wind out of his sails by adopting his whole program.

What has our liberal been demanding all of these years?

Well, he has called for a "planned economy." He has wanted federal laws to protect union labor in the leading industries. He has wanted the New York financial powers drastically curbed. He has wanted the government to crack down on the power trust. He has wanted vast sums spent by Uncle Sam on public works.

He has wanted a systematized federal employment service. He has wanted to see people like Frances Perkins, Louis Brandeis, and Charles Hughes in prominent positions. He has wanted an administration that would place human rights above property rights.

Every one of these goals has been reached. Things that until recently looked like remote possibilities for the millennium are now in actual operation.

But our liberal got left at the post. Change caught him napping. Fate dealt him a hand from the bottom of the deck. And his unhappiness, these days, is heart-breaking to observe.

An unemployed engineer in a middle western city recently gave the police a perplexing puzzle by being found, lifeless, alongside a lonely road with a series of stab wounds in his back and a dose of poison in his stomach.

It looked like murder, at first; but the police finally concluded that the man had killed himself and had arranged things to look like murder because of some final impulse.

This theory, the officers said, was strengthened by the fact that a detective story was found beside the man's body.

But a real detective story fan might easily make just the opposite deduction from this fact. There is nothing a mystery addict hates so much as the novel which presents a puzzling homicide and then, in the last chapter, discloses that it was really a suicide.

If the man in this case was actually fond of that kind of literature, could he be expected to ape a plot which, if he found it in a book, would fill him with a consuming rage?

News that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson will probably resign from his position as recovery administrator sometime late this fall is likely to provide the ordinary citizen with conflicting emotions.

It is highly gratifying, of course, to learn that the general expects the program to be so complete and well-established that he will not be needed more than a few weeks longer. The mere fact that he is looking ahead to retirement indicates that a great amount of success has crowned his efforts.

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Railroad Employee Here

W. K. Butcher, Car Inspector for Missouri-Pacific Dies Friday Afternoon

THREE IN HOSPITAL Two of Five Seriously Hurt on Fulton Road Believed Recovering

W. K. Butcher, aged about 50, railroad car inspector for the Missouri Pacific, died here Friday afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock from heart disease.

First reports had it that he fell from a railroad car and was killed, but Missouri Pacific officials denied that he had met with an accident.

Butcher came here about a week ago from his home in Hot Springs on a temporary job, replacing J. R. Easter, who is in a hospital with an injured shoulder.

A Hope Furniture company ambulance brought him to Josephine hospital, but he was dead upon arrival. He was stricken while working near the Southern Ice & Utilities company.

C. C. Chaney and J. A. Boyett, railroad men, were near him when he suddenly staggered and fell while walking along the tracks.

Crash Victims

Three of five persons who were seriously injured in an automobile wreck on the Fulton highway Wednesday night, remained in Julia Chester hospital Friday, fighting for their lives.

Two of the injured were removed to their homes at Fulton. They are believed on the road to recovery.

Those remaining in the hospital are: Henderson Jones, crushed chest and bruises about the body. He was the most seriously hurt of the group of eight.

Jennie Lee Akin, 13, remained in the hospital with both thighs broken, head injuries and crushed feet.

Mrs. Connie Akin who suffered from a fractured skull and cuts and bruises was the third victim in the hospital.

Will Ed Walker, driver of the truck into which the Fulton party crashed en route to Hope, told The Star Friday that he aided in helping the injured into passing automobiles.

NRA Forces May Be Reorganized

The Resignation of Cates Brings Indication of Shakeup

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A general reorganization of the national recovery administration was indicated Thursday night by Hugh S. Johnson after the resignation of Dudley Cates, the assistant administrator representing industry.

The departure of the official, who has long been at odds with his chief, and the reshaping of personnel were said by Johnson not to be related but his disclosure of plans to alter the administration drastically within a few weeks was made in discussing the Cates resignation.

"And I will have a cream organization," he said, adding that out of months of experience he had picked men for the key jobs.

Other developments of the day in the drive toward industrial stability included:

A move in the direction of price fixing under the NRA code for the oil industry, with the first meeting of board of governors for the petroleum world and Secretary Ickes reportedly fixing an objective of $1 a barrel for crude, with a wholesale base price of between five and six cents a gallon for gasoline at the refinery.

A new attack by the administration's labor advisory board upon the automobile code's provision for hiring and discharging of employees on a merit basis without regard to their union affiliation.

A continuation of negotiations designed to bring the retail and bituminous coal industries under codes next week.

The resignation of Cates next months of dispute with Johnson was the second internal controversy of the administration. Professor William F. Ogburn of Chicago University having resigned several weeks ago after differences with the administrator and Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, chairman of the board.

Tropical Storm on Cuban Coast

Distress Calls Broadcast From British Freighter Caught in Hurricane

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Attended by gales over a considerable area and minds of hurricane force near the center, a tropical storm Friday was brewing along the northern shore of Cuba, putting a British freighter in distress, while a second disturbance was reported near Puerto Rico.

Do Your Part

The drive is on. Will you do your part?

Those were the statements being made Friday at the front doors of every Hope home as the greatest war campaign since 1918 got into action under the Blue Eagle banner of the NRA.

The old war slogan: "Do your bit!" has been supplanted by the more calmer, more confident "We do our part."

Prominent people in all walks of American life have joined hands in a nation wide drive to get business men a hundred per cent under the Blue Eagle and sign up consumers by the millions as pledged supporters.

President Roosevelt and Hugh Johnson, the recovery administrator, have been spreading the Blue Eagle gospel for weeks. Employers have struggled to make the financial adjustments necessary to observe NRA regulations.

Now it's up to the consumers. Will the consumer help? Will they spend, support and patronize establishments which have signed this agreement and are listed as members of the NRA?

No such demonstration of the unity of a whole people—125,000,000—against a national danger has ever been made. In that spirit the whole country is acting. This plan depends wholly on united action.

Three scores of NRA workers started a house to house canvass in Hope Friday morning. Each house within the city limits will be called upon to obtain pledges in the president's re-employment program. Workers will distribute an NRA Blue Eagle consumer's sticker to each signer of the pledge. They are also supplied with pledge cards and worker's buttons.

The committee is asking full cooperation of every man, woman and child in Hope to make this campaign a complete success. Please be kind and courteous and assist the workers in every way possible.

Remember, the President's plan is to cure this depression by increasing purchasing power. You can help him put this plan over by voluntarily signing this agreement to support establishments displaying the Blue Eagle.

There is no force to compel you to sign this agreement. It is not law. It is a personal agreement between you and the president. The president expects you to do everything in your power to carry out the spirit of the agreement after you sign it.

This means whole-hearted cooperation—not by just signing on the dotted line and then not doing your part. It would be a "subterfuge to frustrate the spirit and intent of the agreement" in avoiding what you promised to do.

Results of this campaign, which is being conducted in every city, hamlet, and town in the United States, will be to share in the belief of business men that NRA has offered America a way out of a depression, several years of uncertainty and a constant threat of poverty.

It will make life worthwhile and enjoyable. Sign the consumer's pledge and live up to it.

Various women civic organizations met Thursday at the city hall and formed teams. Friday the house to house canvass started with the Parent-Teachers association in charge of Ward one and two.

The U. D. C. and the D. A. R. are canvassing Ward three and the B. & P. W. club and the American Legion Auxiliary Ward four.

A negro house to house canvass will start soon, J. R. Henry, member of the NRA voluntary committee, announced Friday. If any consumer is missed during the canvass, pledge cards may be obtained from merchants who are listed where the Blue Eagle flies.

Bates Moved to Oklahoma Jail

Plane Used to Deliver Prisoner in Urchel Kidnaping

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Albert L. Bates, indicted as one of the principals in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping, arrived here Thursday by airplane, from Denver. He was handcuffed and under guard of four federal operatives.

Bates, 39, had been awakened from his bunk in the Denver jail before dawn, rushed to an airport and started on the four-hour flight to Oklahoma City.

The plane landed at municipal airport here at 9:45 a. m. Grinning, the bespectacled Bates was whisked off to the county jail in an automobile, followed and preceded by cars of officers armed with machine guns.

Mr. and Mrs. Urschel, who had identified Bates by photographs as one of the two men who seized Urschel from his home the night of July 22, were at the airport to view the prisoner. Federal agents guarded the Urschels.

As Bates sat in the automobile ready for the trip to jail, Urschel ran to the car and greeted him.

"Hello, George," said the oil millionaire. Bates grinned but didn't answer. An officer reminded Urschel that Bates' right first name is Albert.

"Tigress"

Here are two remarkable camera studies of Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, 38 Chicago's "blond tigress," who is on trial for her life for a "negro" committed during a series of holdups in which she is alleged to have taken part with two men companions. These pictures of Mrs. Jarman, mother of two children, were taken in the courtroom.

"Tiger Woman" Is Given Term

Mrs. Eleanor Jarman Sentenced 199 Years for Long List of Crimes

CHICAGO—(AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, called the "blond tigress" by police because of her alleged participation in holdups, was under a 199-year prison sentence Friday following her conviction on a charge of murder in connection with the recent slaying of Gustave Hoch, 71, in his haberdashery.

Mrs. Jarman's companions, George Dale, her alleged sweetheart, and Leo Minnei, were convicted at the same time. Dale, accused of being the actual slayer, was sentenced to death in the electric chair, while Minnei received a 199-year prison sentence when a jury in criminal court returned its verdict.

The 29-year-old divorcee, who is the mother of two children, took the stand during the trial and denied any connection with the shooting.

France Builds Up Powerful Defense

Newspaper Says Germany Will Be Ready for Another War Soon

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Premier Daladier Friday told the French cabinet about the strength of France's new steel and concrete defense chain along the German frontier, while the Nazi followers of Chancellor Hitler were opening a victory convention at Nuremberg, Germany.

The Premier's report came after a recent inspection tour of a solid barrier of ultra modern fortifications along the German frontier.

The new fortification cost $100,000,000 and include trenches and dugouts over a distance of 125 miles. Daladier described the new defense as adequate in blocking an invasion if attempted.

Artillery Ready

STRASBOURG, France.—(AP)—An article asserting Germany could be ready for another war in the air and on land within the next year, will be published Saturday in a Strassbourg newspaper.

German industry has been working to full capacity since May 1, the article will say, and is capable of producing sufficient poison gas, in six weeks, machine guns in three months, rifles and machine guns in six months, and heavy artillery in 10 months.

Dallas Negroes Confess Killing 2 Other Persons

Burkley Brothers Admit Slaying Kathryn Prince, Shooting of Escort

FEELING RUNS HIGH Aged Illinois Man Brutally Beaten, Sister Tortured by Robbers

DALLAS, Tex.—(AP)—Blunt and Thurman Burkley, negroes indicted for the slaying of Miss Kathryn Prince, 19, confessed Friday morning that they were responsible for the killing of Miss Pauline Gorman, 17, also of Dallas, and Abe Schreiber of Galveston, while the two were sitting in a parked automobile near Dallas, June 17, 1931.

Grand Jury Acts

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Murder indictments were returned Thursday night by a quick-acting grand jury against Blunt Burkley, 19, and Thurman Burkley, 14, negro brothers implicated in the mistreatment and shooting of Miss Kathryn Prince and her escort on a lonely road near here.

Body Found

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—The body of Miss Kathryn Prince, 21, kidnapped from an automobile Wednesday night by two negroes who shot her escort, Blunt Burkley, 19, and Thurman Burkley, 14, negro brothers implicated in the mistreatment and shooting of Miss Kathryn Prince and her escort on a lonely road near here.

The negroes confessed to county officers that they killed her after attacking her in a field near where she and Carver had parked.

Carver was in a serious condition at a hospital from two wounds, one in the neck and one in the wrist, inflicted when he attempted to prevent the negroes from driving away with Miss Prince. He was found in a ditch many hours after the negroes accosted the couple as they listened to a radio program in Carver's car.

Assaulted Girl

The negroes, brothers, gave their names as Thurman and Blunt Burkley. They led officers to a field about three miles south of Mesquite where the girl's body was found. Her body bore marks of brutal treatment and the officers said she apparently had been assaulted.

Four officers apprehended the negroes after they received a tip that two negro cotton pickers fitting the description of the assailants as given by Carver, had quit their jobs at noon, collected their pay, and left on foot for Dallas, seven miles away.

The officers went to a farmhouse where the pair was reported to have gone but they had escaped. A short distance down the road they were arrested and questioned separately. After 30 minutes of denials, both made their statements, officers said.

They were brought to the city hall in Dallas. A heavy guard was thrown around the police department when news of the arrest spread and a crowd of angry citizens started forming outside.

Three Others Held

ROBINSON, Ill.—(AP)—While his suspected assailants were subjected to questioning, Bernard Weldon, 94, farmer, died here Friday from the results of a brutal beating administered by three robbers Tuesday night.

His sister died previously from torture she underwent.

Outside the Crawford county jail where a trio of suspects were under examination since 2 o'clock Friday morning, an angry crowd gathered, and authorities feared mob action.

In a neighboring county where Weldon and his 85-year-old sister and a niece were severely beaten, public feeling was running at a high pitch and officers felt they could not safely remove their prisoners to the county jail at Newton.

Mrs. Mary Schraeder died Thursday from her injuries inflicted at the hands of the robbers, but her daughter will recover.

The prisoners held are: Henry Shelby, John Allen and Harold Peckinpah, all three brought here under heavy guard Friday morning.

Post Office to Close Monday for Labor Day

The post office will be closed Monday, September 4th, in observance of Labor Day. General delivery and stamp windows will be open from 1 to 3 p. m.

City carriers will make one complete delivery in the forenoon. No rural delivery service. No money order or postal savings business.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

John W. Allen is Starting Public Works Program... Question Raised as to How NRA Will Detect Monopolies... Winning a Presidential Election in Latin America... The Best Job of Johnson's Guard.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Interior, who doubles as public works administrator, is chafing at criticism of the slow get-away on his $3,000,000 program.

The public works cabinet members and their assistants at the public works board's last executive session, demanding that they report within two days their progress in translating money grants into actual operations and jobs.

He was talking to the heads of the War, Post Office, Treasury, Commerce and Labor Departments.

Approximately $3,000,000 had been allocated for the program, actually expended and relatively few projects put to work.

Among the reasons is the inadequacy of the P. W. A. personnel.

Personal Work

Dupuy Administrator, Henry M. White, General Counsel Henry T. Hunt and Director of Housing Robert C. Kahn, with one or two other specialists, are high grade. Otherwise the staff is weak, with a notable lack of engineering, business and other experts.

Some P. W. A. employees are political appointees. Some were picked by White and a few by Ickes. Recent assignment to P. W. A. of Emil Hurja, Fox Parley's patronage agent, doesn't raise anybody's hopes.

Protecting the Communists

The latest wise crack on Recovery Now is that the four policemen stationed outside the administrator's office when Communists were reported on the way were simply there to protect the Communists from Johnson.

Defeating Monopolies

How can the NRA discern a monopoly on the basis of an industry's mere paper evidence and so uphold the Borah amendment to the recovery act forbidding codes which permit monopolistic practices?

Orwell F. Schuette, the famous "trust-buster" who is now concentrating on Andy Mellon's "aluminum trust," says it can't. He proposes that when an industry has been investigated by the Justice Department or Federal Trade Commission its code be sent to that body for scrutiny.

Attorney General Cummings has just finished an investigation of the Aluminum Company of America. Schuette says the Mellon concern makes all the crude aluminum and has maintained a price of 23 cents a pound through the depression; that its controlable metal at 25 cents while independent, whom Schuette represents, must sell at 33.

Campaign Material

The story may be apocryphal, but it is told of a well known job who has received a fine advisory job from the government of a small republic. He enjoyed the friendship and the highballs of the country's legation officials here. Last winter they told him their president was having reelection difficulties on the issue of which candidate would make the biggest hit with Washington.

He went to Albany and obtained a large photograph of Roosevelt, then president-elect, autographed to the man who was already a president. The picture was used to excellent effect in the campaign. The American, a genuinely able citizen, was later invited to visit with his beneficiary and was given the job.

Defining N-B-A

The "N. R. A." initials have been humorously translated into many versions. A hard-boiled and disgusted cop operator, who apparently had been given his first real lesson about the New Deal, was heard to exclaim as he staggered down the corridor: "Nuts, Run America!"

"I'm sorry, Miss Smith, but I couldn't help being late. The street car wasn't on time."

That was on Monday.

Tuesday, "I'm sorry, Miss Smith, but mother was sick and I had to go to the drug store for medicine before I started for school."

Wednesday some one overslept; Thursday the ice-box had to be fixed; Friday it was something else.

"Miss Brand in a month's time had her regular 'excuses' spotted."

"In every roomful of children," she told me, "there are a certain number who refuse to blame anything on themselves. No, the don't lie exactly, but usually they exaggerate. The big trouble, I find, is a moral cringing, a tendency to blame tardiness or a mishap on any one or anything else than themselves."

"I find this tendency growing," she added. "Either that or else it becomes more of a habit with older children. I used to teach in the grades and now I have high school students. I find these older children very quick with alibis."

Placing Blame

"But isn't it natural?" I countered. "As they get older they are likely to have more responsibility at home. More things are likely to interfere with school work. Besides as life opens up they have more interests outside of school life."

"Yes, I know that," she acknowledged, "but there is something about it I don't like. When anything happens to interfere with lessons or to make them late, they really think that almost anything else is to blame but themselves. If they do it in school they must be doing it at home. When they graduate into business they will blame the world if they don't succeed. It shows a weakening. I think. No matter what happens they will shirk the responsibility onto something else."

I got her point. And as I look back on my own experience in the school room it is doubly proved. On those I have been able to check since, the never-do-wells of today were mostly the chronic, "It wasn't my fault" of old.

Teaching Responsibility

I believe mothers of little children might be on guard about this matter. Probably they unwittingly begin it themselves. They not only excuse their children to other people, but if a baby touches a hot stove they are likely to say, "Bad stove to hurt Harry." If he bites his tongue on a lolly-pop, they throw the candy over the fence with a malediction, "Nasty candy to hurt little Johnny that way." Perhaps they even stamp it under foot.

Little events of early childhood count for so much. Some children are blamed too much for things they can't help. Others too little. But the sooner a child learns that he must bear the responsibility of his own action, or inaction, the better, I think, for his future.

kind to figures that are underweight or overweight.

You should take stock of yourself before you set out to buy that first fall dress. It is as bad to be underweight as it is to be plump. The new fall fashions reveal every curve and, by the same token, do nothing whatever to hide honey, angular spots.

Drinking creamy milk, eating each day three hearty meals consisting of plenty of fresh vegetables, butter, bread, meats and rich desserts are good plans for the woman who wants to gain. And she should try to get eight or nine hours sleep every night.

If your figure has too many prominent curves and you think that you should lose a little weight don't indulge in bread, butter, desserts and candy. Cut starches and sugar down to a minimum and remember to take plenty of exercise. Of course, every one requires some starch and sugar in the daily diet but you can get the sugar from fresh fruits and the starch from cream sauces which are served with fish and meats.

Stick to leafy, green salads and liquids for lunch. And don't eat fried foods for dinner. Meats should be baked, broiled or boiled. Vegetables should be steamed and boiled instead of sautéed in butter.

Indiana to Bar Arkansas Autos

Arkansas Autos

Failure of States to Reach Agreement Is Reported

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Arkansas motor licenses are not worth anything in Indiana, the state revenue department here was advised.

In retaliation for the refusal of Arkansas officials to permit a fleet of Indiana commercial trucks to operate across the state without Arkansas licenses, the Indiana bureau of motor vehicles sent the following message to A. V. Denny, supervisor of the auto division of the revenue department: "Please be advised that Indiana intends to require all motor vehicles carrying Arkansas license plates entering Indiana to purchase Indiana plates."

Fred Watson, state revenue commissioner, said he did not plan to retaliate by impounding Indiana passenger cars.

"Let the tourists come to Arkansas, from Indiana and everywhere else," said Watson. "They shall be made welcome. But the state does not feel it can permit commercial vehicles to use several hundred miles of our roads regularly without contributing to their upkeep."

Will Be Impounded

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (AP) — Matt Leach, chief of state police, announced that Indiana state police will begin impounding automobiles with Arkansas license plates Thursday morning.

Leach said the order had been issued after Indiana had been unable to get a reciprocal license agreement with Arkansas. He said that Indiana trucks have been impounded in Arkansas and that the Hoosier state police will retaliate by seizing both trucks and passengers cars from that state.

NRA Thought for Today

The NRA, rapidly developing, now has a "salute." General Johnson illustrates it. You hold your right hand as high up in the air as you can reach, and smile as though you really believe that prosperity has already come back. If any man holds his arm half way up as a sign that prosperity is only half way back, he's a traitor.—Arthur Brisbane.

The choir of the First Baptist church under direction of Mrs. J. C. Carlton will begin their winter's work at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening at the church with the following program: Prelude, Orientale (violin and piano), Cui. Invention, Anthem, "I Will Magnify Thee," Lore, by the choir, Hymn, Coronation 133, Baritone solo, "It Is Enough (Elijah)," Mendelssohn, by Julian Wood. Anthem, "Hark, Hark

My Soul," Shelley. Offertory, "Evening Star," Wagner. Duet, "The Lord is My Light," Dudley Buck by Mrs. H. D. Mayer and Claude Taylor. Sermon, "Music a Part of Our Worship," Pastor. Men's Chorus, "Seek Ye the Lord," Roberts. Contralto solo, "Come Ye Blessed," John Priddle Scott, by Mrs. D. H. Mayer. Anthem, "Let Zion Rejoice," Herbert. Benediction. Two-fold Amen. ## Borrowers to Get Government Money

Allowance Not to Exceed 40 Cents Per 100 Pounds for Seed Cotton

The Farmers Seed Loan office, of Memphis makes the following announcement relative to loans made by the government to farmers for crop production purposes.

"The office recognizes the need of the cotton farmer for provisions for taking care of the expense of ginning and picking cotton. This office, therefore, will make no claim to the cottonseed, but instead, will permit the seed to be used for picking and ginning as above, and, where necessary an additional amount, not to exceed one-half cent per pound of lint cotton. The full proceeds of the lint, however, must be handled for the account of this office.

"Where cotton is sold in the seed, the allowance for picking will be not to exceed 40 cents per hundred pounds of seed cotton.

"There are three ways for handling cotton this year which are acceptable to this office.

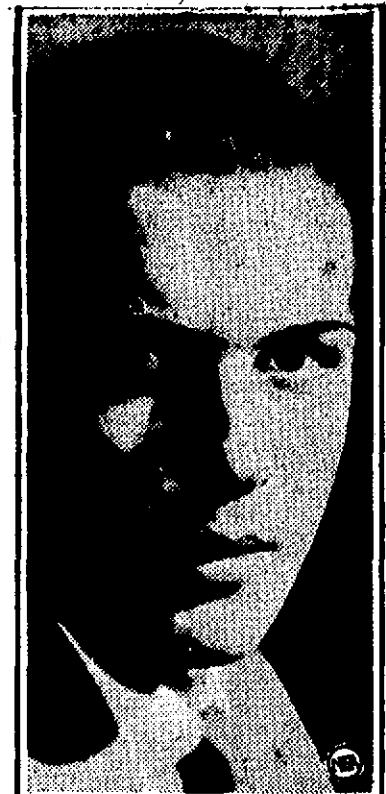

"First: Immediate sale to the local buyer, in which case the buyer should be informed of the government's lien against the cotton and requested to draw check for proceeds thereof in favor of the government and forward it to the authorized field inspector. It may be that the buyer will insist that the seller be named as the joint payee in this check. This somewhat of a disadvantage, but the government will offer no objection if the buyer will draw the check in favor of the producer and the Governor, Farm Credit Administration. In this event, it will be necessary that the check be endorsed by the producer and forwarded to this office or handed to a field inspector.

"Second: The second method of handling the cotton is storage in a Federal bonded warehouse in anticipation of a better price. In case this method is chosen, the warehouse receipts therefor, showing grade and staple, should be drawn in favor of the producer and by him indorsed over to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration and the receipts forwarded to the office or handed to one of the field representatives authorized to take it. In case this method is chosen, sufficient cotton must be stored at the market price of the cotton on the date stored to cover the loan and storage and insurance for a six months period.

"Third: The third method of handling is through the cotton co-operative association of the state. This office indorses the principle of cooperative marketing and will be glad to see all borrowers become members of their cooperative association. In shipping cotton to the association the bill of lading or warehouse receipts should bear the notation to the effect that the cotton is under lien to the Governor, Farm Credit Administration. If the cotton is delivered to the several cotton cooperative associations, sufficient cotton must be delivered to cover the loan at the market price of cotton on the date placed with the association, plus storage and membership dues, reserve, overhead and transportation, if cotton is consigned.

"All cotton stored must be stored in Federal bonded warehouses or be placed with the several cotton cooperative associations and it must be sold or the price fixed on or before April 1, 1934. During the period from maturity of the loan, fixed at October 31, 1933 until April 1, 1934, the cotton may be sold or the price fixed by the producer, or the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration may exercise the authority given by the producer in the application for the loan to sell or fix at any time subsequent to October 31, 1933.

Two New Gins Are to Operate at Ozan

Temple Rebuilds Old and Cox Brothers Have New System

Two new gins have begun operation in Ozan. The new plant of the Temple Cotton Oil Company, replacing the old one which burned in Ozan at the end of the cotton season last year has begun operation with practically new equipment and W. E. Cox and sons of Fulton have built a new gin which is just being completed this week.

The Cox gin consists of a 4-stall Lumus ginning system purchased from the Lumus Gin Co., of Columbus, Ga., and powered by a large crude oil engine. The plant is of concrete and sheet metal and is fully modern in every way.

The new Temple gin is housed in a new concrete and sheet iron building and the equipment is of the Continental Gin Co. It is practically new, having been used for one season at Nashville and moved to Ozan upon completion of the new building there. Steam provides the power for the Temple gin.

The Cox gin is under the management of Cox brothers and the Temple gin is operated by C. D. Ball, assisted by Jerome Smith and Trumann Hill.

BOOTLEGGERS TURN

Such goods are disposed of to merchandise bootleggers and, by the time they have passed through several hands, may be bought by a reputable merchant as bankrupt stocks or what-not without his knowing there is anything irregular in the deal. These stolen products may be mixed with regular stocks and sold without a suspicion.

Few people realize how much counterfeiting of merchandise goes on. The toilet goods and cosmetic trades suffer most from this. Sometimes the counterfeit product approaches the advertised article in quality, but often it is inferior or even harmful. The labels and packages of the standard goods are cleverly imitated. Sometimes even the manufacturer of the genuine goods can scarcely tell the difference.

"Support" Stocks Return

Manufacturers often "dump" surplus stocks of merchandise in foreign countries at such low prices that the industrial bootlegger can buy these goods abroad and smuggle them back into the United States for profitable sale.

In other cases, a shrewd swindler organizes a dummy export company and buys the goods at low prices, ostensibly for export. Then he simply turns them back through devious channels into domestic retail trade.

There is a complex trade, through "brokers," among certain merchants who are unable to buy certain articles direct from the manufacturer because of exclusive territory granted a competitor.

Suppose Merchant No. 1 can't get Blot's Oat Flakes because Merchant No. 2 has exclusive right to them in the territory. But Merchant No. 2 can't get Crispie Crunches because No. 1 has exclusive right to that. So each merchant orders a surplus supply of his article, and through a broker, they swap that surplus. Each then has plenty of both oat flakes and crunchies to sell.

New conditions, new rackets. The NRA is not at work any too soon to enlist aid in squelching both the NRA racketeers and the merchandise bootlegger.

PATSY MONTANA ENTERTAINS

One of the most pleasant entertainments of the season was the program given at the Rosston high school auditorium Monday night, August 28, by Miss Ruby Blevins (Patsy Montana) radio star, and her troupe of singers composed of her immediate family, all of Hope, Ark.

The program consisted of violin and guitar music with yodling, singing both old and popular numbers, accompanied by her violin in a masterful presentation.

As the entire troupe appeared on the stage in full western cowboy costume they made a lasting impression on the entire audience and here's hoping for them much success. We again take of four hat to Patsy. Come again.

Ford Scoffs at Profit Rumors

Says It's All Bunk, No Settlement With Recovery Administration

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—While the belief grew here Friday that Henry Ford has some spectacular "go it alone" plan up his sleeve in his controversy with Recovery Administration, sources close to the automobile manufacturer Friday scoffed at rumors that Ford had plans of sharing profits with employees as a part of his scheme. It's strictly bunk, he said. Other associates declared they did not believe Ford would agree to any further sharing profits than is now provided under the employee-depositor bank.

An attractive frock that you can wear all day long in town or out. Make it of black or navy-purple crepe with a novel collar in a contrasting shade.
THERE'S subtle flattery in the softly draped lines of the collar of this frock and the woman who wears it may be sure of an air of elegance in spite of the simplicity of the dress. Designed in eight sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 44 requires four yards of 39-inch material, plus one yard for the vestee and revers collar. The dress in monotone, without contrast, requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material. The vestee alone requires ¾ yard, the revers collar alone requires ¾ yard.
To secure a pattern and simple sewing chart of this model, tear out this sketch and mail it to Julia Boyd, 103 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y., together with 15 cents in coin. Be sure to enclose, on a separate sheet of paper, your name, full address, your size, the number of this pattern (No. 7897x), and mention the name of this newspaper.

for the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

EVERYBODY KNOWS TODAY that EVE HAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARL BARNES, advertising manager at Bixby's department store, married DICK RADEN, a successful business man, some time ago. But she is not giving up working for her old employer.

EARL BARNES, an advertising man employed by another store, became infatuated with Bixby's, but she refused to leave her old employer. She was glad it was in the advertising office. Her spirits were gay as she went to the French room of the millinery department on her way back to the office. "I'll make a deposit on that hat and have it laid away until pay-day," she thought. "What a difference a hat can make in a woman's life! A truly lovely model like that one would give anyone a new lease on life!"

But a moment later Miss Barnard, the hat buyer, was echoing. "The little model by Colgate—the one with the white violets? Oh, the worst, Miss Hayless, but that is already sold! The blond girl from your office—Miss Allen—bought it not half an hour ago."

Eve frowned her wrath as she could and went back to the office. Mona had not yet returned, but Arlene was at work transcribing notes.

She glanced up as Eve entered and then stopped typing. "My word!" she cried. "What's wrong now?"

Eve told her about the hat. "I might have guessed it!" Arlene moaned in sympathy with Eve. "When Mona saw that you were still in conference at lunch time there was a look on her face that should have warned me. You know—the smile of the cat that has not only eaten the canary but licked up all the cream as well!"

AFTER the black and white sailor none of the new hats interested Eve and she did not select another until the Saturday before Easter when, without enthusiasm, she bought a black beret that she never cared for later. In the meantime, indignation though she was at Mona Allen, she had to forget this prejudice in the interest of her work. It seemed to Eve that she lived entirely for the future and foresight was her watchword.

Occasionally during these busy weeks Eve was obliged to work overtime. She would telephone Dick who usually arranged to meet her for a late dinner. Often he would drop in to see a five o'clock movie before coming to the store for her. Although he professed to get little pleasure from any of these movies, Eve resented the fact that he was being entertained while she worked. But when she was through at the office and met Dick patiently waiting in the road-steps at the side entrance her resentment always left her and she snuggled by his side and lifted her eyes to his in a glad smile.

The Tuesday evening episode still bothered Eve, however. Dick did not leave her every Tuesday but when he did go out alone it was always on that evening. What was he concealing from her? Why didn't he take her into his confidence? Once it occurred to her that she had never had an engagement with him on a Tuesday before their marriage. Now that she was Dick's wife wasn't she entitled to know everything that concerned him? There were times when she thought of following him but her sense of honor prevented her from doing that. She must hide her time, she concluded. Still on the Tuesday when she had to work until eight o'clock and Dick did not meet her she was furious.

AND then one day Marya paused beside Eve's desk and mentioned to Arlene to join them. "I've been waiting all morning," she said, "to talk to you two alone. Ray and I have decided to be married the day after Easter! He's been wanting me to marry him for a long time but I wanted to wait until we had enough money saved to give us a good start."

It was Eve's turn to wish Marya happiness and she did so sincerely. Arlene pretended to go into a faint and then said, "But you wouldn't leave us, would you, Marya?"

"That's what I'm in doubt about," admitted Marya. "I would like to keep on working for a while but my mother and Ray say I shouldn't. Mother is old-fashioned, you know. She thinks I ought to stay at home and spend my time making real stew with our cream sauce and all the other dishes she's taught me. My mother's sweet, but she just won't see things the modern way."

"And she won't hear to anything but a regular church wedding with a reception and refreshments afterward, though I don't want her and my father to go to as much expense for me!"

Barnes rang for Marya just then and she hurried to his office. "Well, that's certainly a surprise!" ejaculated Arlene. "Of course if there is anything I like better than a wedding it's two weddings. But I'd hate like anything to lose Marya from this office! I wonder whether they will live with his parents or with hers or take an apartment? That diamond Marya wears would set most men back at least three years' savings so I suppose they'll have to pinch pennies. Well, she's an angel and I adore her, and Ray is a lucky man!"

Eve wanted to warn Marya against continuing her work at Bixby's after marriage. Marya was not the sort to spare herself. She would go to her home the same effort that a home-keeping wife does and also put in eight exhausting hours a day at the store. And to what end?

Eve's own experiment as a wage-earning wife was not working out any too successfully. She suspected that Dick was learning to depend on others for the companionship she was often too tired or too busy to give him.

But she found it impossible to open this subject with Marya. It would be cruel to cloud the other girl's perfect happiness. And it would be a confession of Eve's failure also. So pride held her silent. Anyhow if she lost Dick she would still have her career. That would be something to live for and to give her courage to keep on.

But it would not be enough, her heart cried out.

David's Amazing Career

Text: I Samuel, 15:4-17. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for September 3.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congressionalist.

The career of David, both in its original progress and in the place that it occupies in religious history, is most amazing and full of conflicting elements.

Religiously David has been given a place almost of sanctity, and the association of the Psalms with his name, and the conception of him as a sweet singer, have suggested his place as a leader of praise rather than as a leader of armies and at one time the heir of a group of discontented and rebellious men.

Yet this saintly young David, who played on his harp and sang, was a man of blood and violence, and the record is that he was not permitted to build the temple which glorified his son, Solomon, because he had been engaged so much in bloody deeds.

It is characteristic of the Bible that with fine honesty it presents both aspects of this remarkable man.

We see him as the young shepherd boy, fearless and confident, going out with his sling and his smooth stones to smite the giant Goliath, swaggering in his armor and defying the armies of Israel. We see him in the modesty of his achievement and in all the attractiveness of his young manhood.

Then the picture changes and we see him as a man of strong passions swept away by the violence of temptation, seeking to cover up his sin, as lesser men have sought to cover up their sins, by the virtual murder of the man whom he had wronged.

The story of his putting Uriah, the wronged husband, into the thick of the fight displays David at his worst, for the murder was as real as if he had struck down Uriah with his own hand.

Yet here again we see David in the noblest side of his character, for when the prophet has brought home to him by an apt illustration the reality of his sin he does not turn in wrath upon the prophet, nor does he seek to extenuate his fault. He acknowledged his wrong-doing, and he seeks a way of repentance and restoration.

We must see David in both of these characters to know the man, and his significance religiously, is that being such a great sinner he was none the less a man of high aspiration whose character soared to things higher than his sins.

It is well to remember the story of David in connection with the world's sin and the world's sinners, for the story is instructive in reminding us that a man's sins are not always the indication of what the man is and of what he is capable of becoming.

It was this that Jesus supremely recognized in his dealing with men and women. He refused to see them rather in terms of their lowest and basest acts. He saw them rather in terms of their higher aspirations and of their repentance as conscience accused them of their weakness and wrongdoing. It is for this that David has had, and ought to have, a high place of significance in the history of sin, righteousness and forgiveness.

The view that sees David chiefly as a saint is as wrong as the view that sees him chiefly as a bandit thief. We must study in him the conflict between right and wrong, of violent passions with the higher aspirations and the generous impulses that conquered in the end.

Lee Tracy Comes to Saenger Saturday

Plays Owner of Cigar Store in "Turn Back the Clock"

Lee Tracy is starred in one of the fastest moving pictures of his career in "Turn Back the Clock," at the Saenger Saturday only. The new film drama, based on an original story by Edgar Selwyn and Ben Hecht, is an extraordinary yarn of a man who is allowed to relive his life through striking events of the past decade. Tracy plays the owner of a small cigar store in New York, married and barely able to make ends meet. Sometimes he wonders how different life would have been had he married a wealthy girl from his home-town. By an ingenious twist in the tale, he is given an opportunity to relive his life and things turn out far different than he had anticipated. Mae Clarke plays Tracy's wife.

An unusual solution to the problem of training delinquent youths in the state reformatory is outlined in "The Mayor of Hell," James Cagney's latest starring picture which comes to the Saenger Sunday and Monday.

The picture first presents a revelation of conditions in the reformatory almost as shocking as those seen in "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

The solution is provided by a pretty nurse, who prevails on a ward healer politician through his love for her, to put it into effect. After kicking out the grafters, the political boss institutes a plan of self government by which the boys rule themselves. They hold regular elections and name all the community officials such as mayor, chief of police, judge, treasurer, etc.

The glowing romance and the eventual working out of a system which the boys carry on with enthusiasm, lends a bright touch to a production that pictures with grim realism the cruelties practiced on boys of tender years.

The price of success, he discovers, is absolutely ruthless; so he makes himself ruthless. He lets his sweet heart die rather than spend the money that would have cured her disease; later he drives his father-in-law to suicide rather than spend money to save him from financial disaster.

It all works out as he had planned. He becomes fabulously wealthy, powerful, respected. But bit by bit he cuts out of his life everything that ordinarily goes to make life worth while. He grows into a lonely old man, morbidly concentrating his stored-up love on his daughter, murdering her when she dares to fall in love with a young man, developing a vast fear of death, turning, finally, into a senile miser.

"The Progress of Julius" is a strong, competently handled tale. Published by Doubleday, Doran and Co., it is priced at $2.50.

VACATIONS and HEALTH By Dr. ERNEST H. LINES

FIRST AID FORETHOUGHT may prevent accidents, and quick thought and action may prevent an accident from turning into a fatality. Know the rules for first aid, and apply them when necessary, without losing your head.

The cardinal principle of first aid is to render such help in time of accident as the facilities at hand will permit.

If you are going on a hunting, camping or extensive automobile trip, it is a wise precaution to carry along a first aid outfit, which may be secured from any drug store. Learn how to use the contents. When anyone has been injured, get the victim to a doctor as soon as possible after applying first aid.

Bleeding or hemorrhage is one of the commonest and most serious accidents. When an artery has been severed, as a result of a serious cut, the blood is bright red and comes in spurts. In that case, pressure should be applied to the heart side of the point of bleeding, preferably with a tourniquet, which may be improvised from a handkerchief or piece of cloth. If it is necessary to apply the tourniquet for any period of time, it should be loosened every 15 or 20 minutes to prevent gangrene. Should it prove impracticable to apply a tourniquet, pressure may be applied by the fingers or by means of a pad held in place by a bandage.

Wounds should be cleaned and a suitable antiseptic applied. This is particularly important when the wound may contain infected material.

Dog bites should be cleaned and cauterized. If possible, the animal should be put under observation to see if it is rabid, and if it shows evidence of this disease, antiseptic treatment should be instituted by a physician.

Burns require first aid attention to prevent infection and to relieve pain and shock. Apply a suitable ointment or dressing and protect the injured parts. If the burn is extensive a doctor should be consulted.

Fractures should be treated by applying a splint made of any rigid material to prevent any further injury to the tissues by the fragments of bone and to facilitate transportation of the injured person. The splint should extend on both sides well beyond the point of injury.

Sunstroke and heat prostration, which are discussed more fully in another article in this series, require rest and quiet in the shade, and a light, simple diet.

Electric shock and carbon monoxide poisoning, which comes from inhaling the exhaust from a motor, require the application of artificial respiration in much the same way as for a person who has apparently drowned. The proper method of artificial respiration is described in the next article of this series.

This is the sixth of a series of 12 articles on Vacations and Health. The tenth, on Artificial Respiration, will answer the questions:

1. Does the heart continue to beat after breathing stops?
2. Does water get into the lungs of a drowned person?
3. How should the proper method of artificial respiration be practiced?

Gaps at Fulton Will Get Paving

Arkansas to Receive $6,748,000 in Emergency Highway Funds

The single county and no single highway is going to get any big slice of the federal emergency highway build- ing fund, because of the insistence of the federal government that the money be spread over as wide an area as possible, according to James R. Rhyne, director of highways.

Part of the money will be expended on highways 67, 71 and 89 in South- west Arkansas, but not nearly as much as had been hoped by residents along those routes.

The maximum expectation now is the hard-surfacing of the gaps at the Fulton bridge, which were left unpav- ed to permit settling of the dumps. Efforts have been made to obtain an allotment for the paving of the gap at the north end of the Index bridge in Little River county, but the federal officials have indicated dis- favor because of the fact that the bridge is not state property, being a district-owned toll bridge, with little prospect of it being released from dis- trict control anywhere within the im- mediate future. Engineers also have in- terposed some objection to the paving of this gap without first ele- vating the grade, which would mean the construction of an expensive dump.

New gravel is to be applied where most needed between Wilton and Lockesburg. Between DeQueen and Mena some relocation is planned for the elimina- tion of grade crossings, of which there are at least seven. This work may not all be done at this time. The only concrete in prospect for highway 71 is between six and seven miles at the extreme north end, be- tween Gravette and the Missouri line. It is the plan of the commission to pave all the gaps on highway 71 be- tween Texarkana and Little Rock and on highway 70 between Little Rock and Memphis, except about six miles to dump close to the bridge at Madison on highway 70, which are to be al- lowed to settle before paving. The state of Arkansas is due to re- ceive from the government in emer- gency highway construction funds ap- proximately $6,748,000 of which 50 per cent is to be spent completing gaps and otherwise improving federal de- signed highways. Of the balance, 25 per cent is to be spent on feeder roads and 25 per cent on designated routes within the limits of cities and towns.

Contracts Awarded

Higher Prices for Farm Products

Steady Decline of Recent Weeks Stopped, Fig- ures Show

WASHINGTON—(P)—After weeks of steady decline, an upswing in the wholesale prices on farm products for the week ended August 25, paved the way for an increase in the general wholesale price level for the week. The bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor Thursday placed the index of the general level of wholesale prices for the period at 41.8 as compared with 40.3 for the pre- ceding week.

The figures are based on average prices for the year 1926 as 100. Farm products after declining from 39.6 to 37.5 during the four preceding weeks, stepped back to a 38.2 level.

Wholesale food prices had experi- enced a similar dip, going from 66.1 on July 29, to 64.4 on August 19. For the most recently recorded week, how- ever, they swung back to 65.6. The general increase in wholesale prices was shared by all major groups except building materials, chemicals and drugs, and certain miscellaneous products. Hides and leather commodi- ties led in the price upswing with an increase of two per cent. The index numbers compiled by the bureau were derived from price quotations on 784 commodities.

Fords Win 7 Places in Stock Car Race

Fred Frame drove a V-8 Ford an av- erage of 80.2 miles an hour to finish first to set a new record in the Elgin National stock car race Saturday, August 6. The race was held under auspices of the American Automobile association before a crowd of 35,000 people.

First seven winners of the 14 en- trants in the race were Ford V-8s. The only competitive car to complete the 203-mile stretch finished last.

Frame, driving for a Dearborn, Mich., branch dealer, made a straightway drive of 100.5 miles per hour and broke the record for stock cars set on the track in 1929 by Ralph DePalma. This clinches the arguments of Ford dealers as to speed, stamina, road- ability and performance of the Ford V-8, it is thought by local salesmen.
